NEW RELEASES 2019

Do you feel it's all moving too quickly sometimes? You're not alone. There is a powerful longing generally for something more genuine and lasting. We're turning away from the consumer society towards a lifestyle that's more about making the most of things, rather than using them and throwing them away. Crafts that are made to last, gadgets that are repaired and given new life. Now is the time to think and take responsibility. To have the courage to stand up to thoughtlessness and wasting resources. And doesn't it make more sense to invest in products that have been made with love for the material and respect for Mother Nature? Products that don't break, and don't break our planet? Deep inside, we all know that sustainability is the only way for ourselves and coming generations. If you're going to be a rebel, do it with a purpose.

: FUSIONS

The best of several worlds has been brought together to develop specific activity-based environments.

Fusions is a piece of storage furniture that builds onto a set base which can be combined with details and functions from our other designs. The combinations on this page consists of Siglo, designed by Henrik Schultz and Mute by Fredrik Matsson. On the cover you can see Tetris by Front Design and also Biblio which is designed by Anderssen & Voll.

You can choose pulls from the entire furniture range. They are available in different types of wood, stains, materials and colors.

AND FORWARD:

Office interiors are evolving. These days, the focus has switched to the office being a place to meet up, with spaces that facilitate collaboration. Here, the conference room may no longer observe strict conventions, but be open to meetings of groups with soft islands in colours designed to spark creativity. We are also far more mobile than in the past, and no longer chained to the same desk day-in, day-out. The office is set to be a social hub, a “soft spot”, where the aim is to get employees to enjoy spending time there. Playfulness and changes of pace. And always with built-in technologies. We now know that employees are more efficient if they have scope for changes of pace.

It is even claimed that the design and placing of furniture determine how we communicate. To make the most of office spaces now, they have to feature lounge or lobby-style layouts. Meaning that they can be rearranged to suit their immediate purpose and offer a dynamic spatiality. Furniture designs that fit together in multiple ways along with space-enhancing seating, textiles and screens.

We go for offices we can identify with.

Our notions of luxury have changed. These days, we're looking for purpose and meaning, but also balance in life. Time, health and happiness are the new status symbols.

Companies looking to attract talented employees now have to create a work setting that promises flexibility, technology and wellness.

Balance in life and in health and respect for our natural environment are starting to influence our decisions, both at home and in the office. We want greenery in our lives; tending plants gives us something to care for and they return the favour by giving us cleaner air and live company.

Nature's own materials and craftsmanship go hand in hand in creating products that not only look good, but feel good too.

: BASE

Our popular chair Base, designed by Anderssen & Voll is now available with a 5-winged frame – a slimmed down choice for offices with a high standard of design.

Moulded seat shell available with or without armrests. The armrests consist of a solid rod that has been turned downwards to accommodate a rubber front section. Available in clear lacquer, whitepigmented or dark-stained ash or oak, or fully lined on the inside.

: BIBLIO

Biblio, designed by Anderssen & Voll, has expanded its storage collection – Biblio Stripe.

Stripe is a development of Biblio's storage system where we have added additional material with the transparent Valchromat at the front. The front has a new section with vertical slits which gives the furniture a nice flow in the office.
